Red Gold Documentary

Red Gold is our attempt to give a face to the issue, and give a voice to the people of Bristol Bay who depend on this extraordinary fishery. We set out to create a different kind of environmental documentary--one that gives all sides a chance to be seen and heard. Red Gold is more about the place and its people than the facts and numbers.

Red Gold is a fly fishing film, which will most likely appeal to a general audience as much as a fly fishing one. It may actually even disappoint a few fly anglers who expect an endless series of fly fishing action clips. I was surprised by the documentary point of view in the movie, but not the least bit disappointed. It's a great documentary!
