The Mazda 2 is a five-door supermini sitting at the entry-point to the Japanese company's range. It too features the same Kodo design language as the rest of the line-up, and is currently in its third generation – with the most distinctive look to date.

Mazda 2 hatchback review: summary | Parkers

The Mazda 2 introduced the world to the Japanese firm's belief that light weight was every bit as important in the fight against emissions and fuel consumption. While others simply tried to improve engine performance, Mazda has taken a holistic view with the 2 by not only making the engines perform better but by giving them less weight in the body to haul around.
